

Navigating Earth System Science Data

July 9-13, 2012

Boulder, Colorado

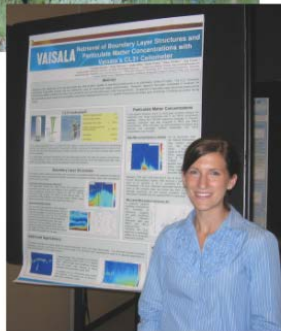

The Unidata Users Committee invites you to join Unidata staff, community members, and distinguished speakers for a workshop to raise awareness of data science in the geoscience academic community and share hands-on activities, course materials, and ideas for improving research and education.

Scientists and educators from the geoscience community will present ideas and techniques for making effective use of geoscience data. There will be a poster session and time for informal discussions with presenters and Unidata developers.

Workshop participants share ideas and techniques in a relaxed, collegial setting.

Visit <http://www.unidata.ucar.edu/events/2012UsersWorkshop/> for registration information and a complete list of workshop sessions.

Registration is open through June 4, 2012.

A limited number of student stipends are available to defray expenses. See the Workshop web site for additional details.

Stipend increased!
Students must apply by June 1

Unidata is sponsored by the National Science Foundation
